MODULE 3 Part 4 - Exact Transcript — The Constellation of Gemini

Welcome to part four of module three where we will be discussing the constellation of Gemini. Gemini holds the oppositional chord with Sagittarius. It is literally on the other side of the astrological wheel to Sagittarius. When Sagittarius is high in the sky, on the opposite side of the planet will be Gemini. Gemini and Sagittarius also mirror each other energetically. That notion, that code, that energetic representation of Sagittarius as the truth seeker, is mirrored in Gemini as the one who is trusting embodiment.

So Sagittarius seeks the truth, goes out on the adventure. Gemini, on the side of that, is the one that is willing to embody, the one that is willing to trust the embodiment, the one that is willing to move into the wisdom necessary to be in the human incarnation.

Gemini is an amazing constellation and again reveals itself anew when we read it through the Cosmic Design codes. Historically, Gemini in traditional Western astrology holds the archetype of the Twins. In Cosmic Design, this archetypal pattern gets elevated. It's no longer just about duality; it is about multidimensionality.

Now, this multidimensional code of Gemini came directly to me through my teacher in Golden Age Leadership Astrology. This multidimensional nature, however, continued to reveal itself as I moved into my channeling practice of Cosmic Design and began pulling through the true code of Gemini as I received it.

Now, Gemini as I received it represents the Multidimensional Wisdom Keeper. It is the energy around intellect, intelligence, knowledge, and wisdom.

Now, this makes sense — that if it's in an oppositional relationship with Sagittarius, the one who is seeking wisdom, who is seeking truth, who is curious — that by the time we get to the opposite side of the astrological wheel, we will have a certain relationship with that wisdom that we have been curious about. And so then, Gemini represents the physical expression of that wisdom. It is the physical expression of being in a body and moving with wisdom, knowledge, intelligence, and intellect.

Now, Gemini — because it is multidimensional and evolved beyond the duality of the Twin archetype — means that we can simultaneously hold these four aspects of information in our bodies at this time. And so, it's highly indicative of the evolution of the human and the evolution of human consciousness.

So as Gemini reminds us of these four aspects of information — intellect, intelligence, knowledge, and wisdom — what we are invited to look at, when we look at placements in Gemini, is the multidimensionality of information: how we give and receive information.

Gemini is the Multidimensional Wisdom Keeper. Gemini is the constellation that holds the codes of how we communicate. Gemini is an air sign. Ancestrally, it holds this elemental signature, and we read it that way in Cosmic Design. It is the air, the breath — the breath of life — that first breath of coming alive, that first breath of coming into our humanness, that first cry that babies make to let us know that they are fully here.

And also, it is the breath that carries us through the incarnation — the breath that allows us to communicate. So this Gemini air, this multidimensional wisdom, these four aspects of information — from intellect to intelligence to knowledge to wisdom — are key aspects of the code of Gemini.

So then, what is the pragmatic interpretation of the constellation of Gemini? When you are reading placements — the Sun, the Moon, the planets — in the constellation of Gemini, you are reading how someone might communicate. You are reading the power of intellect, intelligence, knowledge, and wisdom.

And so, in order to read that, to interpret that, to analyze that, let's take a moment to define intellect, intelligence, knowledge, and wisdom.

Intellect and intelligence go together. There are things that we can acquire — we can search for, read, and go on the internet — and we can acquire intelligence. We can go into certain areas of study and we become intelligent in that area. Intellect is the application of that intelligence; it's the integration of that intelligence. So if intelligence is the information, then our intellect is the embodiment of that information. Those two go hand in hand.

Then we have knowledge and wisdom. Knowledge, again, is something that is acquired. Knowledge is more of the intelligence that we get through experience. So while intelligence is maybe more what we acquire through actual learning processes, knowledge is more of the experiential learning. We have the knowledge of doing something because we do it.

Now, wisdom is then the embodiment of that knowledge. So where intelligence and intellect go together, knowledge and wisdom go together. We gain knowledge by moving through this world. We activate our wisdom through the embodiment of that knowledge.

I would venture to say that wisdom is more inherent, and so is intellect. So we have these inherent qualities that are then activated through the acquisition of information — and then they become embodied qualities. We have embodied wisdom and embodied intellect.

We gain intelligence through the acquisition of information, and we gain knowledge through the acquisition of experience. Knowledge is experiential. Intelligence is more practical and data-driven.

And so, when we have these four aspects of information, we can start to see how someone might be processing the data of this reality. But also — because Gemini is multidimensional — we are also processing on the layers and levels beyond the five senses.

So Gemini placements will indicate an individual's capacity to process information, and an individual's capacity to process information beyond the five senses — into the clair senses, into telepathy, into those higher levels of moving information multidimensionally through the dimensions beyond time and space.

So while Gemini can be a very practical constellation to read placements in — again, it gives us that access point to how someone moves through information — it can also be an extremely metaphysical constellation to pull code through, to see how primed someone might be to lean into their clair senses, their clairvoyance, their clairauidience, their clear capacities to process information beyond the core five senses of this reality.

And so, this loops us back to why Gemini is considered Multidimensional Wisdom. Gemini's core code is Multidimensional Wisdom. Gemini holds the oppositional relationship with Sagittarius, so that truth-seeking curiosity of Sagittarius is then mirrored in the multidimensional wisdom of Gemini.

I hope that this is activating something in your field. When I first received these codes — the true Gemini codes — I was expanded in a way that I really had a moment of pause and awe, because it started to reveal to me how all of this is beautifully built in a very specific design in order for our soul and our human to be marrying each other's journeys, and how the constellations hold these core codes that are essential for these journeys.

And then we can read the pragmatic, practical interpretations, so that as we're weaving it all together — in a birth chart reading or the reading of a chart of the day — we can start to thread these core codes together and start to make it all make sense.

As always, thank you so much for being here.
